Coastal Patrol Boats on Ch'o-do

1. [ ] one steamship, the OSUNG-HO,<sup>1</sup> and two wooden motor boats were based at Sosa-ri (N 38-32, E 124-50) (XC-6366) on Ch'o-do and patrolled the coastal area around the island. During the day the OSUNG-HO patrolled the route between Ch'o-do and Monggump'o (XC-5627). The two small boats patrolled day and night mainly between XC-6565 and XC-6363.
2. Prior to the outbreak of the Korean war, the OSUNG-HO, which was built in 1947, was based in Chinnamp'o. In December 1950 it was moved to the vicinity of Mayomni (XC-9986) where it was less vulnerable to air attack. It was a 90-ton, steel-hulled ship about 65 feet long, 13 feet wide, and 17 feet high with a draft of about 5 feet. Prior to the armistice it had a diesel engine and was capable of a speed of about 7 knots. After the armistice the diesel engine was replaced by a steam engine and the speed was increased to about 10 knots. The ship was equipped with a radio and a searchlight (but no radar), 6 Soviet heavy machine guns, and 5 light machine guns. In addition, the crew of 20 had an undetermined number of rifles, pistols, and PPSU's.<sup>1</sup>
3. The two wooden motor boats, referred to as the No. 1 and the No. 2 Patrol Boat, were 35 feet long, 10 feet wide, and 6 feet high. They were 10-ton boats with GAZ engines and had a speed of about 8 knots. Each had a crew of 10 men. Equipment consisted of 2 light machine guns and an undetermined number of rifles.

North Korean Navy and Civilian Personnel on Ch'o-do

4. [ ] an unidentified North Korean navy unit with about 700 men was on Ch'o-do. The headquarters was at Sosa-ri with troops dispersed along the
